Walter Isard Dissertation Award

At next year’s meeting the Walter Isard Award will be given to the author of the best dissertation in peace science completed in the period 2002-2004. The award is intended to honor outstanding contributions to the scientific knowledge of peace and conflict and it carries a value of $1,000. The 2004 competition is open to students of any nationality who successfully defend a doctoral dissertation between April 1, 2002 and March 31, 2004 in any field on the subject of peace science, conflict behavior, international relations, or a related topic. The winner will be selected on the basis of the importance and scientific significance of the dissertation with respect to the field of peace science and its contribution to the understanding of international behavior more generally. Dissertations may be nominated for consideration for the award by any member of an individual's dissertation committee. Nomination is made by letter to the Executive Director of the Peace Science Society. The letter should outline the contents of the dissertation, including the literature addressed, subject matter, findings and contributions, and include a current curriculum vitae of the nominee. Interested persons should contact the Executive Director, Glenn Palmer.

2005 Founders’ Medal

At the 2000 meeting of the Society it was decided to establish the Founders’ Medal, an award intended to recognize an individual who has made significant and distinguished life-long scientific contributions to peace science. The next award will be given in 2005. Recipients must be at least 50 years of age and either current or past members of the Society. The selection committee consists of the Councilors of the Peace Science Society. Information about the nomination process for the award will appear in the Society’s newsletter and on its Web page.
Houston 2004
The 2004 Peace Science Society meeting will be held in Houston. Rice University and Texas A&M University will serve as co-hosts.

PSS On The Web
The Peace Science Society World Wide Web site can be found at

The PSS Web site gives information about the Society and its activities, including past and upcoming conferences.

The Peace Science Society operates as an objective, scientific organization without political, social, financial or national bias. Its objectives are to foster the exchange of ideas and promote studies focusing on issues of peace and conflict utilizing tools, methods and theoretical frameworks drawn from the social and natural sciences, law, engineering, and other disciplines and professions. A primary concern of the Society is the improvement of social science theory as it relates to world politics. Membership in the Peace Science Society is open to all individuals.
