

The Leonard Tow Humanism in Medicine Award For Graduating Medical Students

Presented by: The Arnold P. Gold Foundation

This award is given to recognize and honor graduating medical students who demonstrate both clinical excellence and outstanding compassion in the delivery of care and who show respect for patients, their families, and healthcare colleagues.. This year, a monetary award and certificate of recognition will be presented to one graduating medical student from each of a number of selected medical schools throughout the United States.

Use the following criteria to consider which fourth-year medical student to nominate for this prestigious award:

- consistently demonstrates compassion and empathy in the delivery of care to patients
- illustrates professional and ethical behavior by example
- shows respect for everyone
- demonstrates cultural sensitivity in working with patients and family members of diverse ethnic and religious backgrounds
- displays effective communication and listening skills—good rapport with patients
- understands a patient's need for interpretation of complex medical diagnosis and treatment and makes an effort to assure patient comprehension—shows respect for the patient's viewpoint
- helps articulate the patient's concerns to the attending physicians and others
- pays attention and is sensitive to the patient's psychological well-being
- is cooperative, easy to work with—engenders trust and confidence
- willing to help others and, when necessary, willing to seek help from others
- displays concern for the general welfare of the community and engages in volunteer activities
- seeks and accepts criticism, using it to improve performance
- is personally committed to objective self-evaluation of his/her own skills
- displays competence in scientific endeavors
